

Tag name	Reason for inclusion
Math	All of these tags are included for their obvious reference to subject areas. Each teacher or student would need or want to tag relevant content areas for easier sorting and filtering. Three exceptions that cross content area boundaries follow in the next three rows.
NaturalSciences
SocialSciences
English
Spanish
FineArts
P.E.
Reading	Reading and writing can apply to many levels and languages, so they would need to be their own tags.
Writing
Technology	Technology is not limited to any one content area or grade level, and would be added on to a link with other tags in most cases.
Videos	For ease of use in finding relevant videos in your content or age level.
Community	To encourage the students to seek information about and from their local communities. Applies to school community, regional community, etc.
Personal	To give students an area to find links to pages that are helpful in dealing with personal issues. Especially when combined with the Middle and Upper tags, creates lists of pages relevant to your age and social group.
Fun	Every list needs some Fun! This tag would include games, both educational and not, that are featured by the school and teachers. It could also include comics, videos (also tagged with "Videos"), etc.
Lower	Since my school is a single school divided up into lower, middle, and upper schools (instead of elementary, middle, and high), each division needs to have its own tags so they can cross tag their bookmarks with content areas or other tags.
Middle
Upper
Teaching	Again, when combined with content areas or grade level tags, these links provided helpful resources for teachers in the school
College	Primarily provided for the Upper School students, the college links provide information about colleges and college-prep activities (tests, reviews, etc.)
Scholarships	Just because scholarship-seeking students need as much help as they can get to get information about scholarships quickly and easily!
Activities	Most useful when combined with other tags (especially grade level tags, "College," "Community" and "Fun"), the "Activities" tag could reference links to events, get-togethers, etc. that for whatever reason are on the Internet instead of the school intranet.
Parents	General resources and information for parents. These become more useful when combined with the grade level tags
